ed or bargained away."

It cited a 1964 ruling in Kansas where that state's Supreme Court noted that "the entire matter of qualifications, tenure, compensation and working conditions for any public employee involves the exercise of governmental powers which are exercised by or through legislative fiat."

"Under our form of government, public office or public employment cannot become a matter of collective bargaining and contract," the Kansas Supreme Court held.

The Arkansas Supreme Court said this in no way violated the rights of individuals, including city employees, "to assemble and to petition the government by address or remonstrance" over any grievances that may exist.

The court also declined the suggestion that it attempt to define precisely the extent to which the city officials might be required to listen to the grievances of its employees, whether presented individually or collectively.

"There is no limit to the various fact situations in which the issue might arise," the ruling said. "Experience has shown again and again that the court's best course is to decide concrete cases as they are presented . . . rather than to speculate about theoretical or academic questions that may never arise in actual litigation."

The ruling stems from a labor dispute that began last June when about 200 city employees asked Fort Smith to recognize as their bargaining agent Council No. 38 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees AFL-CIO.

On June 17, 1968, Mrs. Jeanne Lambie, state president of the union, asked that the union be recognized by the city for collective bargaining of wages, hours and conditions of employment.

The next day, the city's directors adopted a policy statement saying it was the board of directors' responsibility to determine the wages, hours and working conditions of the city employees. It also said any employee who stopped work under the guise of being on strike, or who picketed, would be treated as having quit his job and would be replaced.

The state Supreme Court said that Kimbrough acted rightly in upholding the subsequent union position that some workers were discharged for their membership in the union. The city acted against these persons while they were refusing to work because the city had refused to bargain with the union.

Humphrey Confident of Victory

By JOHN BECKLER
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey said today the Democrats will capture the White House Nov. 5 because they have the trust of the American people.

"On election day I predict bankruptcy for the Nixon-Republicans," Humphrey said. "I predict bankruptcy because the American people are now asking themselves the crucial question: Who can I trust to lead America in the next four years."

Humphrey commented in remarks prepared for a rally on 34 Street, backdrop for a movie about a department store Santa Claus called "Miracle on 34th Street."

This was Humphrey's fourth visit to New York in the last two weeks and party leaders in New York feel the concentrated campaigning is bringing the state's 43 electoral votes within Humphrey's reach.

Texas and California, two more key states, are also on Humphrey's schedule this week.

Humphrey returns to New York after a busy Sunday on television in which he said the government of South Vietnam should not have a veto over any decision by the United States to halt the bombing of North Vietnam.

Interviewed on CBS' "Face the Nation," Humphrey said the bombing was an American mission in which South Vietnam played almost no role. "This matter must be something over which the government of South Vietnam cannot exercise a veto," he said.

The vice president appeared 2 1/2 hours later on another nationwide television program that had been planned as a debate between Humphrey, Nixon and third party candidate George C. Wallace. Wallace said he would debate if Nixon would, but the Republican candidate declined the invitation.

Instead of a debate, the program presented Humphrey in a wide-ranging discussion of his views with a group of voters. The program was taped earlier in the afternoon.

Humphrey's crowds have generally been picking up in recent days and Humphrey, by nature an optimist, is professing growing confidence.

He told Michigan's top labor leaders in Detroit last week "We are going to whip the living daylight out of them."

The national polls have offered encouragement, particularly a new Harris poll released last Friday on the basis of samplings taken Oct. 8-10. It showed Nixon's lead had dropped from eight to five points, with the count showing Republican Richard M. Nixon 40, Humphrey 35, George C. Wallace 18, undecided 7.

Other states due for heavy concentration in the home stretch include California, Ohio, Illinois, New Jersey and Pennsylvania on schedules which emphasize the strongly Democratic central cities rather than the suburbs.

As the campaign drew to a close, one uncertain factor remained. This was what Humphrey termed the "most delicate" negotiations relating to the Vietnam war.

If peace comes, and there were hints all week of a dramatic breakthrough, Humphrey said "that would not only help me, it would help every living mortal in the world."

5 Perish in Plot to Wipe
Out Evidence

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — Five bodies were found today in a burning home apparently set afire, police said, in a futile attempt to wipe out evidence of mass murder.

"A preliminary investigation has produced evidence that this is an arson-homicide case," Police Chief Harry Wilkinson said.

The bodies of Mrs. Katherine Lovette, 40, her three children and a grandson were found in the ruins. Mrs. Lovette and three of the others had been shot.

Mrs. Lovette's husband, James, was hospitalized in critical condition from burns and smoke inhalation. He was unable to talk to police.

The others who had been shot by a .38 caliber revolver were Mrs. Lovette's daughter, Sandra, 19, a son, Todd, 9, and Sandra's son, Scott, 1.

Another daughter, Karey, 16, was dead of undetermined causes.

Temperatures

Fair skies and mild temperatures are expected to continue over Arkansas through Tuesday as a high pressure system continues to dominate the state's weather picture.

The high is centered over Kentucky. Southerly winds are bringing warm, moist Gulf air into the state but a cold front is expected to move southward into the state before moisture builds up to the precipitation point.

No rainfall was reported around the state in the 24-hour period that ended at 7:30 a.m. today.

Low temperatures reported around the state this morning ranged from 46 degrees at Little Rock, Fayetteville, Harrison and El Dorado to 54 at Texarkana.

High temperatures reported Sunday ranged from 79 at Harrison, Pine Bluff and El Dorado to 84 at Blytheville and Fort Smith.

Nixon Sees a Near Landslide

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon forecasts a Republican presidential victory by a margin three to four per cent greater than the national public opinion polls predict, unless "some great event" alters the shape of the campaign in its last 15 days.

As those polls stand now, that would mean a near landslide for the GOP nominee in his second bid for the White House. He lost the first one eight years ago to the late John F. Kennedy.

"I'll make this flat prediction," Nixon said, "I think we'll run, unless some great event happens, three to four per cent better than any poll gives us."

"I say this because I have great confidence in our organization," Nixon said in an interview.

Nixon's one qualification—a major occurrence that profoundly affected the campaign—would seem unlikely to be met short of a settlement of the war in Vietnam.

The most recent national poll, by Louis Harris, gave Nixon a 40 per cent to 33 per cent for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, the Democratic presidential nominee.

Pollster George Gallup, in a survey now one month old, put Nixon ahead by a 44 per cent to 29 margin.

Nixon strategists have said from the beginning that they expected Humphrey's rating in the polls to move upward as the campaign progressed. The vice president gained three points in the most recent Harris survey.

But Nixon himself recalled that he ran ahead of the polls in his string of presidential primary victories, and said he expects to do the same on Nov. 5.

Nixon, lounging in the private compartment of his campaign jet as he flew toward Chicago, reflected on his current campaign and his narrow defeat in 1960.

"It's infinitely more effective," he said of his 1968 style, which is focussed on television, radio and appearances in the major states.

He recalled the televised debates of 1960, which some Republicans believe cost him the election. "They were exciting because there was confrontation," he said. "Yet between Kennedy and Nixon there was infinitely less difference than there is between Humphrey and Nixon."

"Kennedy was centrist," he said, "I'm basically centrist. So the differences were often blurred. The differences between Nixon and Humphrey are not blurred."

"In 1960, it was a shade of difference and the campaign ended that way," said Nixon. "That's why it was so close."

neck collar and a pleated skirt ending at the knee. It was designed by Valentino, her favorite Roman couturier. A beige ribbon was atop her head and she wore low-heeled shoes matching her dress.

Onassis wore a dark blue suit and red tie, and a white carnation in his buttonhole.

Mrs. Kennedy's two children, John F. Jr., 7, and Caroline, 10, and the bridegroom's two, Alexander Onassis, 21, and Christina, 19, stood beside the couple as Father Polykarpos Athanasios performed the ceremony. The bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Alexander Garoufalidou, was the official witness.

As a small choir chanted hymns, twin white wedding crowns were crossed over the couple's heads. The priest exchanged two gold rings to symbolize the unity of the couple "in the eyes of God."

Unlike the Catholic wedding ceremony, there was no "I do" nor any pledge to love, honor or obey. The priest placed a New Testament encased in gold before the couple and each kissed it.

Wreaths of orange blossoms were then placed on their heads and they did the Dance of Isaiah, a kind of prance in which each tries to step on the other's feet. The one who stomps his partner first, says Greek tradition, will be the dominant partner. In the crowded chapel, however, it was impossible for most to tell who won, and the couple was not saying.

Her dark eyes brimming with tears, the new Mrs. Onassis was radiant. Many of the 40 relatives and friends in the little chapel wept with her, including her mother, Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss.

The quiet of the ceremony was punctuated by cries from boatloads of Greeks who tried to land on the beach 30 yards away. Coast guardsmen kept them at bay.

Wallace to Step Up
His Space

By JULES LOH
Associated Press Writer
EN ROUTE WITH WALLACE
(AP) — George C. Wallace, determined to pick up his pace after a noticeable stumble, will make his stretch run for the presidency on friendly turf.

"There are two theories about campaigning," said Bill Jones, a top Wallace strategist. "One is to concentrate on where you're strong; the other, on where you're weak."

Without admitting Wallace had made a tactical error, there was no way for his campaign managers to conceal that in the past fortnight he had chosen the latter strategy—and that his momentum had slowed as a result.

Except for interludes of wild enthusiasm, such as in Salt Lake City, San Francisco, and perhaps San Diego, Wallace found his customarily adoring audiences often chillingly indifferent across the northern tier of states.

The experience and the strain — 26 speeches in 17 states — left Wallace fatigued and, at times, visibly irritated.

Now Wallace is embarked on a final push that will take him through some 20 states, most of them ones he has already visited and found receptive to his third party stance.

He also has scheduled eight five-minute television broadcasts between now and Nov. 1, all in prime time, plus regional telecasts and a newspaper advertising blitz.

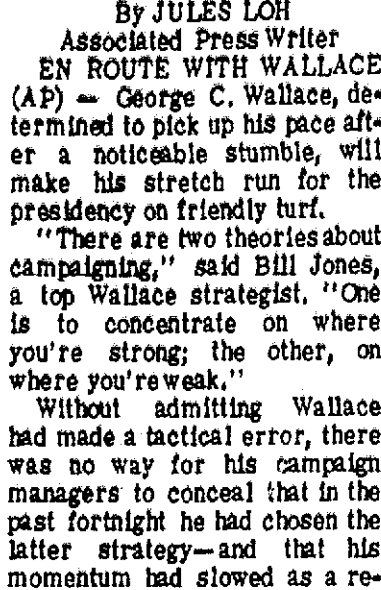

Still unknown is what effect Wallace's running mate will have on the campaign, now that he is back from Vietnam and can begin stumping, or what effect a bombing halt would have on the hawkish Wallace-LeMay position on Vietnam.

Wallace aides were generally disappointed in the public response to retired Air Force Gen. Curtis E. LeMay's candidacy, and to the announcement that he would tour the Vietnam battlefield.

They had hoped both moves would give Wallace a strong push: instead the latest Louis Harris poll showed Wallace slipping from a popularity rating of 21 per cent to 18 per cent.

However, Wallace and his aides realize deep down that winning the presidency would

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

SHE WASN'T KIDDING!

Dear Helen: We were kidding around at a party and Mariene got the talk started about leap year. After about four gimlets, she proposed, and I, thinking it was part of the game, said "Sure, a week from next Tuesday."

The next morning she called and said, "Don't forget our date," and then it hit: She wasn't kidding!

I explained the best I could that I wasn't ready for marriage, but now she is putting out that I am a no-good four-flusher and not to be trusted.

A gentleman doesn't make damaging remarks about a lady, but how do I stop her making such remarks about me? She is getting to a woman I am interested in. In fact I sense a coldness in all my former friends. How do I make them aware of the truth without making this female appear a fool? — WOMANLESS, SO-CALLED "WOLF"

Dear Womanless: Play the gentleman, stick by your story that "It was all an unfortunate misunderstanding," and you'll be surprised how soon people catch on. Gals who cry "wolf" soon lose their listeners. They're usually put down as sore losers. — H.

Dear Helen: I read recently that there is an oversupply of adoptive babies for the first time in decades, this because girls don't feel they HAVE to get married these days, and also because children of mixed parenthood happen along often, and aren't really wanted by any race. So the medium-brown children, the ones with slightly almond eyes or hair a bit too kinky — are left behind, to rattle around in foster homes and never know what it's like to have real parents.

We have two children of our own, and I can't have any more. We want to adopt a child who isn't pure Caucasian, not only because we feel these children should have the love they deserve, but because we want our children and hopefully their friends to see all races as equal.

Some of our associates are appalled at this. They say rumors will start about me or my husband having a "sordid affair," and "doing the honest thing." I'm appalled at their thinking. How can people be so biased? — SUFFER, LITTLE CHILDREN.

Dear S.L.C.: For some people, bias is second nature. But scores of moderns believe as you do — and so a few unwanted brown children will know the joy of real homes.

I'm sorry more couples — and agencies — don't share your point of view. If adoptions were allowed, regardless of color — and news stories helped by showing the plus side — we wouldn't find so many sad-eyed youngsters in dormitories, waiting for the next temporary foster home. — H.

Dear Helen: I'm a 29-year-old woman and I have never had an affair. I have dated a few men, but they disappear somehow. I used to think it was the greatest thing, keeping yourself for marriage, but when does virtue give way to prudery? I'm sick of being pure and lonely!

Last month I went to a doctor, gave a fictitious married name and got a prescription for The Pill. But how do I find a man? I'm gotten around at the office that I'm — UNTOUCHABLE.

Dear Un: True, a 29-year-old virgin doesn't exactly brag about it, but aren't you being a little over-anxious? If you throw yourself at any old man, just to prove you aren't a prude, you'll get takers, but you'll only prove you're a push-over. Work on a new, warm, friendly personality and perhaps you'll attract the RIGHT guy. After which... well it's your decision. — H.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Pat Paulsen and the comedy writers for the Smothers Brothers show have, for the past six or eight months, left no political cliché unturned in a mock campaign to send the stony-faced comedian to the White House.

The cream of the jest was Sunday night's CBS special. Not only did "Pat Paulsen for President" permit the re-use of many Paulsen's monologues on the Smothers Brothers show, but it also achieved some extra mileage from the publicity stunts surrounding the gag.

All this, mind you, in a format satirizing that sacred television institution, the in-depth documentary. They even had Henry Fonda, the narrator's narrator, doing the talking.

There were clips from old Smothers Brothers shows with Paulsen uttering some of his immortal lines including "A good many people today are against the draft laws: These people are called soldiers" and, on urban problems, "I would provide for a woman to come in three days a week and clean your city."

Like the real-life campaigners, Paulsen traveled, telling the folks from New York to California that he liked their state so well he was coming back to settle down there.

Another section of the hour was a stab at comedy biography — growing up on a ranch "where we ran about 100 head of chickens." "This, generally didn't fare too well, but it did give Fonda an opportunity to intone a glittering line about Paulsen's program "from the chicken house to the White House."

It seemed, toward the end of the 60 minutes, that the material was running thin. The final portion was used to show the stars who turned out for a Paulsen publicity party — in a cafeteria — last July in Hollywood.

If the show could have been edited into a half-hour of the best material, it would have been much more stimulating.

With Halloween approaching, network television starts loading special programs into its schedule, pre-empting the regular weekly program. This annual practice will continue to build up through the Thanksgiving-Christmas buying season.

Most nights hereafter there will be at least one special on some networks. Some nights there will be three or four.

Before the season is over, there will have been close to 250 specials.

Recommended tonight: "Barbar the Elephant," NBC, 7:30-8 EDT, animated adaptation from the Jean de Brunhoff stories with Peter Ustinov narrating; "Hemingway's Spain," ABC, 9-10, an effective travelogue via film and experts from his writings.

controllers and tension and complaints were gone.

Earlier in the day Schirra held a running verbal battle with Mission Control center in Houston. The 45-year-old veteran, making his third and last trip into space objected to a number of unscheduled flight plan changes and snapped:

"I've had it up to here today and from now on I'm going to be an on-board flight director for these updates. We're not going to accept any new games, like doing some crazy testing we never heard of before."

The outburst occurred after the control center asked the astronauts to run some on-board computer tests that had not been planned. Earlier, Schirra was irked by a change in the procedure for firing the spacecraft engine.

A passive thermal test, which required the crew to put Apollo 7 into a slow tumble, also angered the spacecraft commander.

"I wish you would find out the idiot's name who thought up this test," Schirra said. "I want to find out and I want to talk to him personally when I get back home."

At another point, he said sharply: "We have a feeling you are believing that some of those experimenters are holier than God. We are heck of a lot closer to him right now."

Eisele joined the argument after he tried a navigation test which had been revised.

"I just don't understand all the changes and so forth at the last minute," he said. "I think it's rather ill-prepared and hastily conceived."

Schirra also complained about the food supply, the work load and a lack of sleep. To remedy the latter, the ground scheduled 10 hours for each man Sunday night.

The astronauts and the ground reached a standoff on one item—whether to wear the space suits during re-entry.

Head colds suffered early in the flight by all three have left them with clogged ears. Schirra said he was afraid the astronauts' ear drums could be damaged as they parachute in their capsule to earth unless they could equalize the rising air pressure by holding their noses and blowing.

Schirra suggested leaving the suits off entirely. The ground told him Sunday they were to wear their suits. They agreed on wearing the suit without helmet or gloves.

Questioned about the complaints, flight director Glynn Lunney replied that this was the first test of a new spacecraft and "we are bound to be performing some tests highly different than planned because of what we've learned as the flight progresses."

Asked if he thought Schirra was justified in the complaints, Lunney answered: "I think to get Wally's reason, you are going to have to ask him, as we will have to do."

A capacity audience was on hand as the 80-year-old showman, attired in tuxedo and straw hat, sang and danced.

He showed he can keep up to date, too. He pantomimed such moderns as Sammy Davis Jr. and donned a Beatle wig for a pop number, complete with hip movement. He received an ovation at the end of his performance.

In his dressing room later, Chevalier said, "Now is the time to quit, when everyone is asking for me."

Hogs Suffer First Loss of Season

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas young football team has finally suffered what many thought they would have incurred long before now: A beating.

Darrell Royal's Texas team outlasted the Razorbacks 39-29 in the highest-scoring Arkansas-Texas football game since Royal and Frank Broyles took the helm of the two Southwest Conference powers.

"Texas played a great football game," said Broyles. "It was the best I've ever seen. We got beat by a great, inspired football team."

The victory raised Royal's record to 7-4 against Broyles in their SWC coaching careers, but the Longhorns firmly back into the conference race, and gave the Razorback record its first blemish of the 1968 season.

Four running backs gouged the yardage out in chunks for the Texas attack and led by 26 points going into the last period, 39-15.

Arkansas had led 15-10, thanks to a 42-yard field goal by Bob White, an eight-yard touchdown dash by Bill Burnett and a six-yard touchdown pass by Bill Montgomery to Chuck Dicus.

That came with about five minutes left in the second quarter. In rapid fashion, Texas snatched command from the hands of the Razorbacks and firmly controlled the next five minutes and most of the rest of the game.

The bruising, slashing runs for the Longhorns came from Chris Gilbert (108 yards), Steve Worster (82 yards), James Street (71 yards) and Ted Koy (63 yards).

Gilbert moved into the No. 2 spot among all-time SWC running backs with a career total of 2,516, second only to the 2,618 compiled by Jim Swink of TCU more than a decade ago.

Street probably was the most dominating to Arkansas' morale. Texas had taken an 18-15 lead and Arkansas was driving when Fred Stelmarm intercepted a Montgomery pass at midfield.

With only a couple of minutes left before halftime, Street lofted a perfect strike to flanker Cotton Speyrer on a 49-yard touchdown play that led the Longhorns to retire at intermission with a 25-15 lead.

Texas got two touchdowns in the last half, and Arkansas got two, leaving unchanged the spread that existed between them at halftime.

"That took a lot out of us," Broyles said later.

"It was a great football game," he said Sunday during his show on KATV television at Little Rock. "I'm extremely proud of our team. The majority played their best games."

Broyles said Arkansas underestimated the ability and speed of strength and the power of the Texas running attack. Street replaced Bill Bradley at quarterback for the Longhorns several weeks ago.

Royal also said he was surprised by the 39-15 lead the Longhorns held going into the last quarter.

"We're going along neck and neck, then bam, suddenly Texas is out front by 26 points," he said. "Scores are just going out of sight. I don't know how the dam broke so fast."

The Razorbacks brush up this week for a meeting Saturday in Little Rock against Missouri Valley Conference member North Texas State, which beat Tulsa 20-17 last weekend.

David Dickey is expected to be sidelined because of a knee injury but Burnett has been getting the most action at tailback, anyway. Fullback Bruce Maxwell may be slowed by a chest injury and defensive halfback Gary Adams is expected to play despite a neck injury against Texas.

Two Upsets Among the Ranked Teams

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Terry Hanratty won one for Notre Dame... and lost one for the Gipper.

Hanratty, a gifted quarterback, led the Irish to a crushing 58-8 victory over Illinois Saturday and in the process, smashed the career yardage record of the legendary George Gipp.

Terrific Terry hit 13 of 22 passes for 212 yards and gained 55 more rushing for a total of 267. Terry hiked his career mark to 4,179 yards—eclipsing Gipp's record of 4,110.

Gipp established his mark in a wondrous career that ended in 1920, shortly before his untimely death. His sudden death prompted the famous quote by Knute Rockne, "Let's win one for the Gipper."

While Notre Dame, the nation's sixth-ranked team, had an easy time of it, the same couldn't be said of Northwestern. The Wildcats played another Top Ten team and lost their fifth straight to second-ranked Ohio State, 45-21.

The loss prompted Northwestern Coach Alex Agase to pick the Buckeyes as the nation's No. 1 team.

"Overall, Ohio State, was the best of the five teams on the day we played them," Agase said.

He should be able to express an opinion. On successive Saturdays, the Wildcats have lost to top-ranked Southern California, fifth-ranked Purdue, Notre Dame and Miami of Florida, ranked No. 11.

Southern California and Purdue had close calls in a football weekend laced with upsets and near-misses by heavy underdogs.

The Trojans needed a nine-yard touchdown run by O.J. Simpson in the fourth quarter to nip Washington 14-7, and Purdue's Leroy Keyes made up for four fumbles by running for the winning last quarter touchdown in a 26-27 squeaker over winless Wake Forest.

North Carolina startled a seventh-ranked Florida 22-7, and 17th-ranked Texas swept by 19th-ranked Arkansas 39-29 in the day's big upsets.

Third-ranked Penn State was idle, fourth-ranked Kansas socked Oklahoma State 49-14, eighth-ranked Tennessee nipped tough Alabama 10-9 and 10th-ranked Georgia walloped Vanderbilt 32-6.

In the second ten, 11th-ranked Syracuse was idle; 12th-ranked Miami beat Virginia Tech 13-8 on Friday night; Nebraska, No. 13, lost to Missouri, No. 20, 16-14; Stanford, No. 14, tied Washington State 21-21; Texas Tech, No. 15, tied Mississippi State 28-28; 16th-ranked Mississippi beat Southern Mississippi 21-13; 18th-ranked Michigan dropped Indiana, the 19th-ranked team, 27-22; and Louisiana State, tied for 20th, topped Kentucky 13-3.

Most of the Top Ten take to the road Saturday. Southern Cal travels to Oregon, Ohio State goes to Illinois, Penn State plays at Boston College, Kansas at Iowa State, Notre Dame at Michigan State, Florida at Vanderbilt, Arkansas at North Texas State and Georgia at Kentucky.

Purdue plays the only home game, against Iowa, and Tennessee is idle.

Hanratty hurried three touchdowns passes in guiding Notre Dame to a 24-0 halftime lead, then practically sat out the second half.

Fittingly, he broke Gipp's mark on an 18-yard touchdown pass to Jim Seymour, his No. 1 target throughout his golden college career.

Simpson scooted nine yards for his second touchdown to cap a 99-yard march for Southern California in its last-minute victory over upset-gear Washington.

Purdue pulled out its victory with two touchdowns in the last seven minutes. Keyes knifed through the Deacons' two yards for the final touchdown with 1:16 on the clock.

Keyes, although fumble-prone most of the day, carried the ball for 214 yards in 25 rushes.

North Carolina pounced on several of eight Florida fumbles in dealing the Gators their first loss in five games as John Hartig led the North Carolina attack with three field goals.

Texas crunched out yardage on the ground in its victory over previously undefeated Arkansas. The defeat shoved Arkansas out of the Southwest Conference lead.

Ohio State had trouble with Northwestern until the fourth period—when the Buckeyes punched over three touchdowns as quarterback Rex Kern lofted

The Kansas City Chiefs, playing without injured receivers Otis Taylor and Gloster Richardson, resorted to straight T-formation football against Oakland—no fancy stuff, no frills, no flunkers.

The result was a 24-10 triumph Sunday that kept the 6-1 Chiefs a half-game ahead of 5-1 San Diego, which crushed Denver 55-24, in the American Football League's Western Division.

The defending champion Raiders dropped 1½ games back with a 4-2 record.

The New York Jets maintained their one-game lead in the Eastern Division with a come-from-behind 20-14 victory over Houston. Runner-up Boston kept pace with a 23-6 clubbing of Buffalo. In an inter-division skirmish, Miami edged Cincinnati 24-22.

The National Football League also had a full Sunday schedule with the following results: Los Angeles 27, Atlanta 14; Cleveland 30, Baltimore 20; Detroit 14, Green Bay 14; Dallas 20, Minnesota 7; San Francisco 26, New York 10; St. Louis 41, Washington 14; New Orleans 16, Pittsburgh 12; Chicago 29, Philadelphia 16.

The Chiefs sent Mike Garrett, Robert Holmes and Wendell Hayes slashing through the Oakland defenses. Quarterback Len Dawson went to the air only three times and completed two, an AFL low, as the running two touchdown passes and ran seven yards for another.

Kansas struck for a pair of touchdowns at the outset of each quarter and coasted over Oklahoma State for their fifth straight victory.

Earl Kremer's 54-yard field goal gave Tennessee the edge over Alabama. The outcome was in doubt until the last play when Mike Dean's Attempted field goal with five seconds left was blocked by Jim Weatherford. Alabama had missed a two-point conversion try minutes earlier.

Georgia silenced outmanned Vanderbilt with 16 points in the second quarter and put the game away with 16 more in the fourth stanza.

Americans Harvest More Medals

By BOB GREEN

Associated Press Sports Writer

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Star Spangled Banner is beginning to sound like a stuck record in these 19th Olympic Games.

Today, that anthem which was played 15 times in the spacious plain for track and field events, moves indoors to the pool where the U.S. teenage water sprites already have established an overwhelming domination.

The talented Americans picked up their greatest harvest of medals Sunday, eight gold and a total of 18. That put them far in front of their rival Russia, which managed only seven, three of them gold.

The United States now has a total of 55 medals, 24 of them gold, and Russia has 35, including 11 gold.

And all indications are that the Yanks are coming, that they've just gotten started.

They've won nine of the 11 swimming events on the 33-event schedule and are expected to continue to win. And, too, they clinched at least two gold medals in sailing, in the Star and Dragon classes, with one race yet to go at Acapulco today. Russia has one clinched there, as has Sweden.

Debbie Meyer of Sacramento, Calif., who led a 1-2 U.S. finish in the women's 400-meter freestyle Sunday, in Olympic record time of 4:31.9, said the U.S. girls are just getting warmed up, since they had to reach a peak for the trials, now they are trying for a second peak.

"We all pointed for the Olympic trials because making the team is so difficult with the many great swimmers we have. Sherman Chavoor, our coach, has been trying to get us up mentally for the Games."

The men didn't do too badly Sunday, sweeping the five swimming and diving golds up for grabs, plus grabbing four of the seven track and field golds on the last day of that sport's competition.

There was a major track upset, with Kipchoge Keino whipping an ailing Jim Ryun in the 1,500 meters, in Olympic record time of 3:34.9. Ryun was a distant second in 3:37.8.

Ryun, who holds, among others, the world-mile and 1,500 meter records, just wasn't up to it. He was stricken with mononucleosis during the summer, which delayed his training, and has been fighting a stubborn cough and cold while in Mexico.

"My legs felt weak all this week," the tall, lean Kansan said.

He stayed well back in the pack, trailing by 70 yards at times, tried to make his move but just didn't have it, finishing several yards back in 3:37.8.

But three relay teams came through in world record times, and Dick Fosbury, Medford, Ore., won the high jump at an Olympic record 7-4½ with teammate Ed Curruthers second at 7-3½. Russian Valentin Gribilov was third.

The men's 400-meter relay team—Charlie Creene, Mel Pender, Ronnie Ray Smith and Jim Hines—set a world record of 42.8 in beating Cuba by inches.

Hines was a couple of yards game amassed 294 yards.

Kansas City, which hosts San Diego Sunday, had a 24-0 lead on short touchdown runs by Hayes (twice) and Holmes and Jan Stenerud's field goal before Oakland scored in the third period.

A crowd of 50,015, largest ever to see an athletic event in Kansas City, watched the Chiefs extend their winning streak to five games, a club record.

San Diego, meanwhile, unleashed a powerful air attack that buried Denver. John Hadl completed only nine passes but they covered 321 yards and accounted for four touchdowns—74 yards to Lance Alworth, 22 and 75 to Gary Garrison and 50 to Jacques McKinlon.

Three touchdown tosses, Bob Howfield's field goal and Joe Beauchamp's 35-yard interception return gave the Chargers a 31-10 halftime lead.

New York put together a long drive in the late going after blowing a 13-0 lead. Joe Namath's passes covered 53 yards and Matt Snell plunged over from the two for the winning points with 46 seconds left.

Don Trull relieved injured Houston quarterback Bob Davis in the fourth period and gave the Oilers a 14-13 lead with scoring passes to Alvin Reed and Jim Beltrame.

Cappelletti, a 34-year-old veteran, needs 11 points to become the first AFL player to score 1,000.

back of Cuba's Enrique Figueroa, but passed him with a great burst of speed.

"I told them (his teammates) if they could keep it close, I'd do the rest," Hines said.

The men's 1,600-meter relay team also established a world record, a sparkling 2:56.1—figuring out to just a tiny fraction over 44 seconds a man. They won by 35 yards, again beating Cuba. The team was made up of Vince Matthews, Ron Freeman, Larry James and Lee Evans.

And it was only in the presentation of medals at the 1,600 meters did a small show of racial protest—which has disturbed these Games—make a show. All four runners wore black berets at the ceremony and all raised a clinched fist as they walked out of the stadium.

The presentation of medals was made by Douglas Roby of Detroit, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee. All the runners but Evans shook hands with him.

Cuba later announced it was sending all its silver medals to American Black Power leader Stokely Carmichael "As a symbol of protest of the treatment of the black man in North America."

The women's 400-meter relay team—Barbara Ferrell, Margaret Ballies, Mikirette Netter and Wyoming Tyus—also established a world record of 42.8, with Cuba against second. Russia was third.

The Russians also picked up a bronze in the women's shot, by Nadzda Chlzhova. The event was won by Margitta Gummel of East Germany at a world record 64-6.

Mamo Wolde of Ethiopia took the marathon in 2:20:26.4, replacing his countryman, Abeba Bikila, winner of the last two Olympic marathons. Bikila dropped out after 17 miles.

"I'm not surprised," Wolde said. "He been sick in bed for a week."

Fosbury, Medford, Ore., has an unusual jumping style, dubbed the Fosbury Flop, in which he leaps over the bar backwards, his head facing the sky.

"It's the only way I know how to jump," he said. "I don't care what they call it if it gets me across the bar."

The American swimmers were magnificent, taking 10 of the 12 swimming and diving medals presented.

Bernie Wrightson, on leave from the U.S. Navy, came from behind with a beautiful performance on his last three dives and won the men's three-meter springboard diving title with 170.14 points, with Jim Kenry, Bloomington, Ind., third with 158.02.

It was America's 11th consecutive Olympic gold medal in that event.

Linda Gustavson, Santa Cruz, Calif., was second to Miss Meyer in the women's 400-meter individual medley. Only a third by Karen Moras of Australia kept the United States from a sweep of all the swimming medals.

Claudia Kolb, in an Olympic record 2:24.7, led teammates Sue Pedersen and Jan Henkle in an American sweep of the women's 200-meter individual medley, and Charles Hickcox, 2:12 flat, led American teammates Greg Buckingham and John Ferris in a sweep of the men's 200-meter individual medley.

The United States also picked up two silver medals in wrestling, by flyweight Rich Sanders, Portland, Ore., and bantamweight Don Behm, Lansing, Mich. The Russians got two golds and a silver in that competition, dominated by Japan's three gold medals.

Russia's other gold came from Elena Novikova in women's individual foil.

Both Russia and the United States continued their march toward a showdown in basketball. The United States just held off an inspired Puerto Rican team 61-56 while Russia took tough Brazil 76-65. Each is undefeated in its division.

Tigers Roll to an Easy Victory

By ARTHUR MAXWELL

Yerger Sports Writer

The Yerger Tigers recorded their fifth victory Saturday night when they walloped the Booker T. Washington High Wolverines of Atlanta 6-0.

The Tigers had to play catch up football in the first quarter because on the opening kickoff, the Wolverines ran 80 yards around the left side for their first and only score. The extra point attempt failed, so with 11:43 remaining in the first period, the Tiger suddenly found themselves behind by a score of 6-0.

Following the Wolverines' kickoff, the Tigers were held on downs, and had to give up the ball.

On the Wolverines' first play from scrimmage cornerback Frank Prater stole the ball from their fullback and ran 30 yards for Yerger's first score. Artis Martin kicked the PAT so with 10:24 left in the first period the score was Yerger 7-Atlanta 6.

An Atlanta back was hit hard on the kickoff, by Sammie Austin, who made him fumble and Yerger's David Benton recovered. The Tigers began to move the ball on the ground until they got to Atlanta's 12 yardline, that's when Quarterback David Block hit Halfback Artis Martin for 12 yards and the score. The PAT was good. The score then read Yerger 14-Atlanta 6.

When the first quarter ended Yerger was still ahead 14-6. In the second period both teams were held scoreless, as the defenses dominated.

The Tigers scored again late in the third period, on a 2 yard plunge by fullback Estelle Hendrix. The PAT failed, and with 0:50 remaining in the third period the Tigers were apparently ahead to stay because the score was Yerger 20-Atlanta 6.

After an exchange of punts the Wolverines had a punt blocked by Robert Baker of Yerger, who recovered it and ran it in for the touchdown. The extra point attempt failed and the score was Yerger 26-Atlanta 6.

Late in the final period the Tigers halted an Atlanta drive on their 10. They began to move the pigskin and with 0:13 seconds remaining, the Tigers scored again late in the third period, on a 2 yard plunge by fullback Estelle Hendrix. The PAT failed, and with 0:50 remaining in the third period the Tigers were apparently ahead to stay because the score was Yerger 26-Atlanta 6.

Jim: "Why don't you take over today's column and write about your old friend Ben Creel who has just retired at the Cleveland Press?"
Oswald: "You were about three years old when I first met Ben, who had just started at the Press. He wasn't a Life Master then for the simple reason that they hadn't thought of Life Masters back then. But he was a bridge player and he added the post of Bridge Editor to his regular work with the paper. He did not do the sort of column we write but he covered bridge news that would be of interest to Cleveland readers."

"He also was a mighty tough opponent at the table. Today's hand is one he bid and played against me in a Cleveland tournament some time before World War II. He used a new-fangled convention called Blackwood to get to seven spades."

Jim: "I note that he stayed out of the no-trump trap. The best North and South can make at no-trump is 12 tricks."

Oswald: "The hand would be a cinch grand slam bid today. At least you would expect nearly every pair in a good field to reach seven spades. Back in that neolithic age of bridge we got exactly one match point for watching Ben run off 13 tricks. Not that he wasted much time. He drew trumps and claimed in a total elapsed time of about two seconds."

Jim: "I think I see why so few players reached the grand slam. North-South could count on 13 tricks if he could depend on his partner for both the king and queen of spades or for a six-card spade suit headed by the king."

Oswald: "His partner told me at the time that Ben would not rebid a bad spade suit over his three-heart bid so that he had no worries when he bid seven."

THE WELL CHILD

Preschool Halloweeners Need Adult Supervision

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Halloween is for youngsters. Much has been done to make it safer and saner. The unbridled vandalism of the "good old days" has been replaced by a parade of trick-or-treaters in fancy costumes and for many teen-agers by well-organized parties sponsored by churches, schools or civic organizations. Welcome as these changes are, all the hazards have not yet been removed.

National Safety Council files contain records of dog bites, burns and other injuries incurred when young children are allowed to roam through strange neighborhoods without adequate supervision. That makes Halloween a time when all motorists should take added precautions when driving in residential areas. Preschool children should be allowed out only if they remain part of a group of older children or if a parent follows at a discreet distance. The area canvassed should be limited to the child's block so that no streets need to be crossed.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

British playwright Thomas Morton was prolific and popular in his day, but he is now all but forgotten except for one character, Mrs. Grundy, who is never even seen on stage in "Speed the Plough" (1798), but who is always present. Dame Ashfield, The World Almanac notes, continually worries whether her neighbor, Mrs. Grundy, will think her proper and respectable. Mrs. Grundy is now a symbol of slavish conformity to conventions.

Our Daily Bread

Sliced Thin by The Editor
Alex. H. Washburn
Hammerschmidt's
Questionnaire;
Time Goes by

Last August Congressman John Paul Hammerschmidt sent a questionnaire throughout the Third Arkansas District and drew 14,635 replies. Your controversial editor is surprised to find most of the people of our district feel the same way he does.

Here is the report from the home district:

1. Should Congress remain silent on present administration policies in Vietnam so long as the Paris talks continue? 64.2 per cent voted No.

2. Should the minimum voting age be reduced to 18 years as requested by the President? 59.9 per cent voted No.

3. Do you favor giving tax credit for tuition paid for son or daughter in college? 68.4 per cent voted Yes.

4. Would you favor a constitutional amendment to allow Congress to override a Supreme Court decision by a two-thirds vote? 83.7 per cent voted Yes.

5. Do you think present laws and court rulings seriously hamper law enforcement officials? 90.5 per cent voted Yes.

6. Should the federal government try to slow the population migration from rural to urban areas through programs of economic incentives and aids to private industry to help create jobs in rural areas? 65.5 per cent voted Yes.

7. What steps should be taken to stop riots? 65.9 per cent voted to give police and troops a freer hand in early stages of disorder.

8. On the question whether the federal government should offer any form of a guaranteed annual income 58.4 per cent opposed any kind of a guarantee.

9. On the foreign aid question 52.8 per cent favored reworking it to meet the times.

On the question of letting 18-year-olds vote here's my thinking: Expanding the voting franchise without a corresponding increase in voter attention and responsibility doesn't make for better government. Giving women the vote back in 1920 was supposed to elevate the tone of public affairs — but it hasn't worked out that way. And if you're going to suggest something unpleasant to the 18-year-olds — such as coupling with the voting privilege the requirement that they study American history — I suggest the 18-year-olds look over the proposition with a wary eye. They'll be 21 soon enough without borrowing three years of adult grief.

Do you find as you grow older that when you check up on a past event it's further back than you imagined?

In my report last Friday on our 15th full-color production which will run tomorrow I said it was the Wizard of Oz edition of the Ice Capades which appeared in Shreveport "three or four years ago." Later I had to look up the exact date — and was I surprised!

The Ice Capades presented the Wizard of Oz routine at Shreveport Oct. 27, 1961, and we ran a page of my black-and-white pictures three days later on Oct. 30.

But an Ice show is always fresh and exciting — whether the 1968 version opening at Shreveport Tuesday or the Wizard of Oz performance of seven years ago.

Police Report 3 Weekend Accidents

An auto driven by John Henry Mitchell of Hope ran a stop sign and ploughed into a City Police car driven by Marvin Arterbury Saturday at South Hazel and Division Streets.

Investigating State Trooper Wallace Martin charged Mitchell with driving while intoxicated. There was an estimated $100 damage to Mitchell's car and $500 to the city police vehicle.

At 7th and Spruce Saturday cars driven by James E. Cheatham and Virgil Lee Nelson collided with minor damage according to Officer Long.

Minor damage was also reported in a collision of cars driven by Darrell B. Cox of Magnolia and Clovis G. Title of Hope in the 100 block of West Second, reported Officers Neal and Ward.

Jackie, Greek Millionaire on Honeymoon

By CHRIS ELJOU
Associated Press Writer
SCORPIOS ISLAND, Greece (AP) — Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis and her multimillionaire Greek bridegroom began their yachting honeymoon in port today amid icy rain and gale winds.

Rains poured Sunday all through the simple Greek Orthodox ceremony that united the 39-year-old widow of President John F. Kennedy to Aristotle Onassis, 62, the self-made shipping magnate.

Onassis' luxurious yacht, the Christina, rocked at its moorings alongside his private island, fueled and ready to weigh anchor for a Mediterranean honeymoon.

But all through the night and into the morning, the winds and rains raged across the islet in the Ionian Sea that Onassis bought six years ago and made into a paradise.

The glamorous former first lady and her bronzed, silver-haired husband retired on their wedding night aboard the yacht without revealing their travel plans.

At a champagne reception aboard the Christina Sunday night, the man who rose from teen-age poverty in Turkey to a fortune estimated at $200 million to $500 million dollars said he and his bride hadn't decided where they would go.

The wedding ceremony in the simple, freshly whitewashed Chapel of the Little Virgin on Scorpios was a far cry from the lavish affair in Newport 15 years ago when Jacqueline Bouvier married John Fitzgerald Kennedy at a Roman Catholic Mass.

For her second wedding, Mrs. Kennedy wore a beige chiffon and lace overblouse with tulle.

Presbyterians Issue Call to New Pastor

The congregation of the First Presbyterian Church of Hope has issued a call to the Reverend James E. Sewell of Norwood, North Carolina, it was learned today. He will succeed the late Dr. L. T. Lawrence as pastor of the local church.

Mr. and Mrs. Sewell are both natives of the Russellville area. He attended the University of Arkansas, and graduated from Arkansas College and Erskin Presbyterian Seminary. He has served churches at Warren, Arkansas, and Norwood, North Carolina.

A spokesman for the local church said today that the Reverend Mr. Sewell would come to Hope highly recommended, and would likely assume his duties here about December 1st. The Sewells have five children. They will live in the Presbyterian manse at 611 South Main Street.

Don't-Do-It-Yourself Policy Follows Many Mechanical Experiences

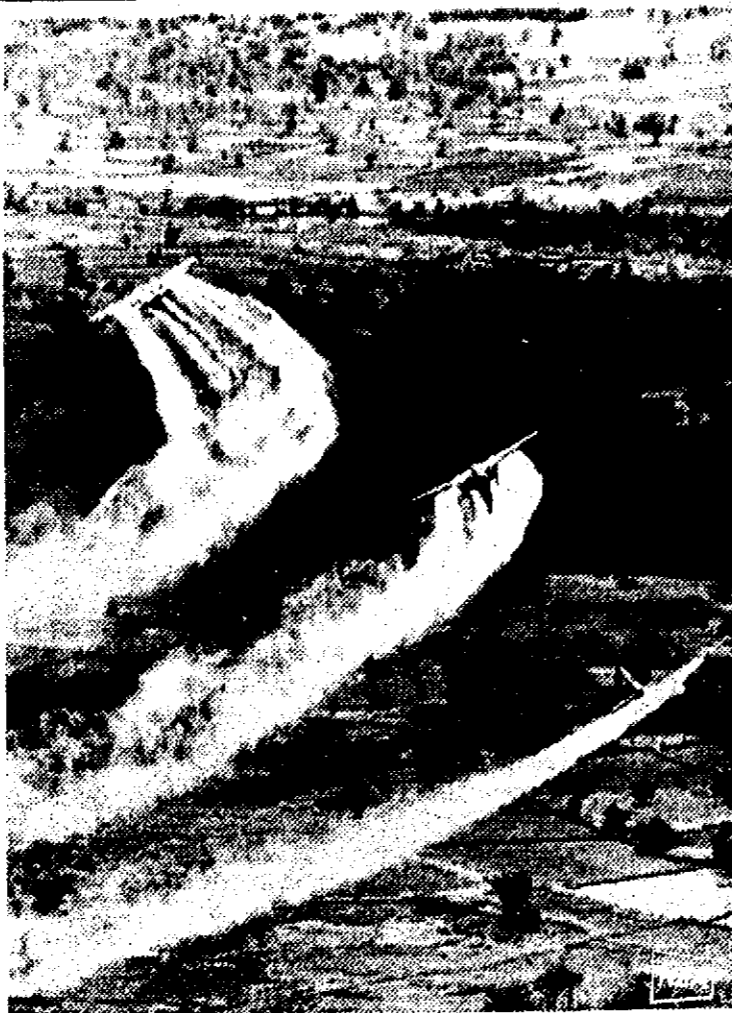

By JOY STILLEY
NEW YORK (AP) — I'm trading in my muscles this year for a whole battery of battery-operated gadgets that will make people-power as obsolete as a midknee skirt.

I became addicted to this don't-do-it-yourself philosophy when I got a mechanical toothbrush which goes busily about its business with absolutely no encouragement from me.

Then I learned you can't beat a portable beater for efficiency. It carries its own energy supply, so if you want to whip up the potatoes while going for a walk around the block, there's your answer.

No use expending personal effort when pushbutton marvels are all around. Hand polishing of shoes is absolutely out. Now there's a long-handled buffer with built-in St. Vitus dance to do the job.

2 Killed in Wreck Near Nashville

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Six persons died in traffic accidents Saturday, and that stood up for the entire week-end in Arkansas.

The Associated Press death count period began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended last midnight.

The victims were: — Jimmy Dale Lawrence, 20, and Tommy E. Gilbert, both of Nashville, killed when the car driven by Lawrence ran off Arkansas 24 about 3 1/2 miles west of Nashville and crashed into a wooded area, throwing the two from the car.

— Jerry P. Burnett, 20, of Fayetteville, killed when the car in which he was riding ran off a road and hit a tree near Fayetteville.

— Donald D. Ford, 19, of Ashdown, fatally injured when his car was rammed by a Kansas City Southern train at a crossing on Arkansas 108 two miles north of Ashdown.

— Mary Johnson, 41, of near Monticello, killed when her car left Arkansas 81 on a curve in the road and turned over several times seven miles north of Star City.

— Mrs. Henry Kaffka, 31, of Bono (Craighead County), killed when the car she was driving turned onto Arkansas 18 and collided with a pickup truck.

Convictions for Inciting Riots Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court rejected today appeals by three white supremacists convicted of inciting to riot with anti-Negro and anti-Jewish speeches in a Baltimore park.

The American Civil Liberties Union claimed the men were convicted without proof that they caused a riot or even posed a clear and present danger of riot.

Rather, the ACLU said, they were convicted for advocating racist and anti-Semitic views. The appeals argued this violates constitutional free speech rights.

The three are Charles Conley Lynch, 54, formerly of San Bernardino, Calif.; Richard Berry Norton, 32, and Joseph Carroll, 20, of Baltimore. Lynch is an organizer for the National States Rights party, Norton is coordinator for Maryland, and Carroll is party youth director.

The rallies were held with officials' permission in and near Patterson Park July 25, 27 and 28, 1966. Lynch, Carroll and Norton called for sending Negroes to Africa, asserted belief in "racial purity" and racial segregation and claimed the Constitution was written for white people only. Negroes were referred to as "niggers" and as "wild animals."

They were convicted of inciting to riot, conspiring to incite riot and disorderly conduct and sentenced to two years in prison.

Their appeal to the Supreme Court was turned down without amplification, Justice Hugo L. Black entered a dissent.

Newspapers Win Review From Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Tucson, Ariz., newspapers today won Supreme Court review of a federal judge ruling that certain aspects of their joint operating agreement are illegal.

The case is of major import to the newspaper industry. The American Newspaper Publishers Association, pressing the court to step in, said 44 newspapers in 22 large cities operate under agreements similar to the Tucson pact.

A 1940 agreement between The Arizona Daily Star and the Tucson Daily Citizen merged all the business functions of the two newspapers, including production, circulation and the business and advertising departments. Operating assets were put under joint ownership.

U.S. District Court Judge James A. Walsh of Tucson, in a civil antitrust action brought by the Justice Department, ruled last Jan. 31 that some parts of the agreement are illegal and must be discontinued.

Freedom of Information Act Upheld

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Supreme Court today upheld Arkansas' Freedom of Information Act and declared that the legislature "has spoken so unequivocally that its command (for open meetings by public bodies) cannot be misunderstood."

The ruling came in a suit filed by the North Little Rock Times against Mayor W. F. Laman, the city aldermen and the city attorney. It affirmed a lower court ruling by Circuit Judge Warren Wood.

The suit resulted from a city council meeting April 24, 1967, when the council voted to go into closed session with the city attorney to discuss a state Public Service Commission proceeding in which the city was a party.

The city maintained that the meeting could be closed to guarantee the secrecy of the lawyer-client relationship between the city and its attorney.

Smith wrote that the Freedom of Information Act clearly defined the state's public policy to be that public business be performed in an open and public manner.

"By analogy, the state of Arkansas is continually engaged in litigation, but there is scant occasion for its attorney general to confer in secret with the members of the general assembly," Smith wrote.

Smith said the 1967 act specified that meetings could be closed for consideration of personnel matters but that the legislature did not see fit to exempt meetings between a city council and a city attorney.

Smith said the legislature necessarily "had to make a policy decision when it drafted the Freedom of Information Act. He wrote:

"On the one hand, to deny to the city council the right to meet in secret with the city attorney might in some instances work to the public disadvantage."

"But, on the other hand, to allow the council to go into executive session at any time, upon the pretext of consulting the city attorney about legal matters, might readily open the door to repeated and undetectable evasion of the Freedom of Information Act — also to the public disadvantage."

Downtown Week Here Oct. 20-26

The week of October 20th to 26th is National Downtown Week and James Morrow, Pres. of the Downtown Hope Association, has announced that many merchants in downtown Hope will participate in observing the event by special advertising during the week. Newspaper and radio copy will spotlight the advantages of downtown shopping stressing the big selection and variety available to downtown shoppers. Morrow points out that renovation in downtown Hope in the last few years has virtually given the downtown section a face lifting and represents a quarter of a million in improvement. Mr. Morrow also stated that there are 340 parking places and that parking is free after 4:00 p.m. and all day the first Wednesday of each month. The downtown Hope association has for many years spearheaded projects such as bringing Santa Claus to Hope, Christmas Decorations and other projects. The current effort to secure Christmas decorations for the city originated with the Hope Downtown Merchants Association. The decorations will not be confined to downtown Hope, however, but will be extended all the way up Third Street to the shopping center and in the shopping center.

National Downtown Week is observed in many cities from coast to coast with special events. The Hope Downtown Association has nothing particularly planned this year but will simply remind the residents of southwest Arkansas of the service and goods available and that nearly 700 people work in downtown Hope.

After Disagreements Astronauts Prepare for Splashdown Tues.

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Calmed down after a day of bitter disagreements with ground controllers, the Apollo 7 astronauts soared into their final 24 hours in space today, eager for their homecoming.

Highlights of the final day were the seventh and final television show from their orbiting theater and another ignition of their big spacecraft engine.

Otherwise Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., Air Force Maj. Donn F. Eisele and Walter Cunningham were busily preparing for re-entry and splashdown in the Atlantic Ocean Tuesday.

They are to trigger their spacecraft engine over Hawaii and streak through the atmosphere to a landing southeast of Bermuda at 7:12 a.m. EDT.

The aircraft carrier Essex heads a large recovery force waiting to retrieve the astronauts as they complete their 11-day space mission that has put the United States firmly on course to the moon.

"I'm looking happily to Tuesday," Schirra said Sunday night as the astronauts exchanged lighthearted banter with ground

Rules City Doesn't Have to Bargain

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Supreme Court ruled today that the city of Fort Smith does not have to bargain with an employees' union but that it must reinstate any employee wrongfully discharged in a labor dispute.

The high court opinion was unanimous. It reversed part of a ruling by Chancellor Warren Kimbrough, who had held that the city was required to bargain in good faith with the union.

Justice George Rose Smith, who wrote the opinion, affirmed Kimbrough's order directing the city to reinstate discharged workers.

Smith said the courts had held that, in the absence of a law to the contrary, "a municipality or other political subdivision is under no duty to bargain collectively with its employees about wages, hours or working conditions."

The court said that "basically, the reason for the rule is that the fixing of wages, hours and the like is a legislative responsibility which cannot be delegated."

Schedule of Apollo 7 Splashdown

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Here is the scheduled sequence of events for the return to earth Tuesday of Apollo 7.

6:43 a.m. EDT—Main spacecraft engine fired for about 10 seconds as Apollo 7 soars south-east of Hawaii, slowing its speed and starting it downward.

6:45 a.m.—Cone-shaped capsule carrying the astronauts separates from the main engine.

6:56 a.m.—Spacecraft enters earth's atmosphere 400,000 feet over Houston, the heat shield on its blunt end facing forward.

7:07 a.m.—Two 16.5-foot diameter drogue parachutes deploy at 23,000 feet to slow the craft's speed from 300 to 175 miles an hour.

7:08 a.m.—Three 83.5-foot diameter main parachutes deploy at 10,000 feet to reduce speed to 22 m.p.h.

Saigon Irked by New Peace Proposals

By JOHN T. WHEELER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — High circles in the Saigon regime are sharply critical of Washington's new peace initiative and its proposal to halt the bombing of North Vietnam.

"The Americans are fighting a political campaign at home, not the war here," said one senior official.

The South Vietnamese government is deeply concerned that in its negotiations with Hanoi, Washington may settle for less than it would if the presidential campaign were not on.

Many in the Saigon government believe that because Hanoi realizes the importance to the Johnson administration of some pre-election break in peace negotiations, the allied bargaining position is vastly weakened.

"For the first time we're winning really winning," said one government minister. "For the first time in five years there is real popular support for the government." He added that the U.S. overtures to Hanoi "risk shattering" all that has been accomplished.

President Nguyen Van Thieu has met four times in five days with U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker to discuss the American peace initiative. Government sources say Thieu is seeking firm assurances that the United States will not de-escalate the war without some major concession from North Vietnam.

A senior Vietnamese source said it was feared that Washington would agree to a "gimmick" solution, a de-escalation pledge from Hanoi that would not really affect the Communists' war stance. The fear is that such a deal would put the allies at a permanent disadvantage in bargaining with Hanoi and vastly lessen the chances of a permanent solution acceptable to Saigon.

One senior official said any unilateral de-escalation would amount to a betrayal of the American fighting men who have died in the war.

Should South Vietnam consider its interests undermined by any bombing halt package, a wave of anti-Americanism would probably sweep the South. Demonstrations and rioting, possibly with tacit government approval, could be expected from the Catholics who are well organized as a political group.

Archbishop Nguyen Van Binh of Saigon said Sunday if a bombing halt "does not serve the interests of the South Vietnamese, then we must all object to it as citizens."

$11,592 in U.S. Funds to Spring Hill

Spring Hill School District at Hope has been notified by the Federal Program Division of the State Department of Education that its program for the expenditure of $11,592 in Title I funds under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act has been approved. Associate Commissioner Wm. H. Moore who heads the Federal Programs Division, announced this week.

This amount may vary slightly when final calculations on allotments are completed sometime next month, Moore said. In all cases, however, counties will be receiving approximately eight per cent less Title I money than last year, because of the ESSEA cutback at the federal level.

Moore explained. He added that a formula readjustment of the number of eligible children for school districts within each county has accounted for a slight increase in a few school districts and reductions beyond eight per cent in others.

The Spring Hill District is receiving $822 (less) than it received in 1967-68. Its Title I program which is planned for disadvantaged children will include: under instruction, English reading, mathematics, under supportive services, clothing, food, medical care, and library.

The 65-and-Over Vote

WITH THE NIXON CAMPAIGN ON E A —The Norview Hardware store, on the edge of Norfolk, Va., is a gathering place for what Richard Nixon likes to call "the forgotten Americans"—that is to say the old folks.

Norview Hardware caters to the old—the old people, the old customs, the old politics. Nobody at Norview Hardware gives a damn about the "now" generation.

Take Bill Neff, for example. He says he's "seventy-two and one-half," and got more damn sense than all of those silly-billy hippies in Chicago.

Or Francis Gaumont, 67, who got banged up in France during World War II and therefore has little sympathy for "them that's against the Vietnam soldier."

Or even W. G. Berry, who owns Norview Hardware. He's only 65 but is mature enough to know "we got a bunch of clucks trying to ruin our country."

Neff, Gaumont and Berry meet at Norview Hardware every day. So do a dozen or so others. The men sit in chairs by the window and smoke. They play dominoes.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY
If thou art a master, sometimes be blind; if a servant, sometimes be deaf. —Fuller said it.

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

The Garrett Chapel Baptist Church will celebrate its 65th anniversary Sunday, October 20, 1968, at 3:00 p.m.

Rev. N.H. Dockery will preach for the occasion.

Guest churches are: BeeBee Memorial C.M.E., Bethel A. M. E., Lonoke Baptist, Rising Star Baptist, Common Hill Baptist, New Bethel Baptist, St. Paul C. M.E., Washington, and Antioch Baptist, Blevins. The public is invited. Rev. F. R. Williams, Pastor.

4-H CLUB NEWS

A meeting of the McCaskill Club held at the Community Center on October 9th, at 6:00 p'clock, with Gloria Merricks presiding. Devotion was conducted by Sadie Merricks, song leader.

The new business included election of officers for 1968-69. They are as follows: President, Gloria Merricks (reelected); Vice-President, Jackie Staggers; Secretary, Diane Watts; Assistant Secretary, Doris Armstrong; Song Leaders, Sharon Miller, and John Wayne Armstrong; Reporter, James Staggers, Jr.; Recreational Leader, Sadie Merricks; helpers: Aubrey Watts, Freddie Staggers, James Merricks; Program Chairman, Lovell Watts; helpers: Jackie Staggers, Doris Armstrong, Gloria Merricks; Girls' Leader, Mrs. Essie Dean Staggers; Boys' Leader, Mr. Joe Walker; Clothing Leader, Miss Verna Lea Smith; Foods' Leader, Miss Ruby Goff.

Plans were discussed for a Halloween Carnival.

The program consisted of a demonstration on foods by Jackie Staggers, and a skit, "Get Ready, Here I Come," was presented by Dan Robert Miller and Sharon Miller. Comments were made by the Assistant County Agents, Mrs. A.T. Denham, and Mr. C.B. Smith, concerning the record books and National 4-H members, which were played on the air last week. Hope you heard them.

Refreshments served were furnished by Doris Armstrong.

The next meeting will be held November 13, 1968. Mrs. Joe Walker, Main Leader; Diane Watts, Reporting.

BARBS

By PHIL PASTORET

Keep busy every minute of the working day and the rest of the crew will get a nice rest.

If you can remember "cab-page night," "doorbell night" and "gate night," you're much too old to go Halloweening this year.

The one person who always gets his request fulfilled is the fellow who asks for trouble.

They pick their fingernails. And they talk—about fishing trips never made, women never met, and bygone days that never really existed.

"Things never used to be like this in America," Bill Neff says.

"Sure didn't," somebody nods.

"All this riotin' and what-not. I don't know."

Everybody shakes his head.

"Hell, I remember when we'd have come down hard on the whole bunch. I remember when we'd put those punks and crooks in jail, where they belong."

Now and then somebody comes into Norview Hardware to buy something: a sack of fertilizer, a can of paint, a box of No. 3 nails. One of the old-timers will get up, make the sale, then ease back into his well-worn seat.

Richard Nixon could be right about these "forgotten" old men. There are nearly 20 million of them in the nation. They are anything but apathetic. The trouble is, they say, nobody ever listens to their point of view.

Richard Nixon listens, once in awhile, about every four years. Hubert Humphrey has listened, this autumn anyway. Both know that there are 12.5 million registered voters over 65 and that such a block is vital to the election.

But, for the large part, nobody is really listening, claim the Norview gang. Or, if they are, they aren't clearly hearing what the old people say.

"You take these here senior citizen clubs," says Bill Neff. "The Golden Agers and such. Well, ha, mostly they just do crocheting and ceramics."

The group nods.

"There aren't nothin' but women at the clubs."

Another nod.

"I went once," Neff continues. "We all made sandwiches and put them in bags. Then we put our names on the bags."

Then they handed out coffee

HOPE (ARK) STAR, Printed by Offset

and potato chips.

Francis Gaumont blows his nose.

"Then we had a Sunday School for adults. We sang hymns and read from a book—Norman Vincent Peale. That's all we did the whole time."

Bill Neff doesn't really feel old folks' clubs are bad. But the opinion is they are more for young folks than old folks. The opinion is they are something of a corner in which old people can be neatly tucked away.

"Hymns," says Bill Neff. "That's all we did."

Fortunately for the Norview Hardware gang, they don't need a senior citizens' club.

Nor do they need social worker supervision, or organized recreational activities. They have their store and they have each other.

W. G. Berry says they all "are a bunch of country boys." These are not urban sophisticates; rather, they take pride in being "common sense" people.

The common sense, they say, is indicated in their politics, which they embrace enthusiastically. They are all conservative.

"We're individuals," says Francis Gaumont, a frail gentleman who believes Harry Truman was the last honest man. "We don't expect anybody to give us somethin' for nothin'—and we don't want anybody else to expect it either."

Money for instance. None of the Norview men has any money ("I owe everybody in town," says W. G. Berry) but none of them are looking for handouts. Richard Nixon's promise to double Social Security benefits does not enthruse them much. To a man, they say, "I'll take what I got, comin' and nothin' more."

At times, the conservative atmosphere around Norview Hardware is unreasonably thick. They still call black people "niggers" in the store and their views on the suppression of lawbreakers would curdle the ears. But nobody is senile at Norview Hardware. There are a couple of canes in use, one or two hearing aids turned on full volume, but the ancient minds are in good working order.

"You know," says Francis Gaumont, "I remember I sold the very first Veteran's Day poppy in New York City. And you know who to? Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt!"

"Say," mumbles Bill Neff, "there was a good old gal."

"Yessir, she was."

"She worked right up to the end, she did," Francis Gaumont adds. "She traveled and made speeches and things. Yessir, her life really meant somethin'."

Only South for Wallace, Many Figure

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican and Democratic professionals across the country say they doubt George C. Wallace will carry any states outside the South—but they expect the third party candidate to make some dramatic showings. Wallace could run second in scattered non-southern states and strong in at least three more, according to party professionals and independent observers surveyed by The Associated Press in every state.

Wallace forces say they could carry Michigan with a 50 per cent vote, stand a good chance in Pennsylvania and will pull off some startling overturns in other states.

The major party professionals assess the prospects for Republican Richard M. Nixon and Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey about the same way the candidates themselves have.

Republicans say even privately that Nixon is going to win unless he makes a mistake. "Let's not blow it," is a watchword.

The Democrats say Humphrey is behind—and they blame intraparty splits, their campaign's late start and a money shortage—but say he already has gained the momentum to overtake Nixon Nov. 5.

Associated Press bureaus in every state assessed the campaign at this point on the basis of state polls and interviews with party leaders, campaign insiders and independent observers.

They gave Nixon the lead in at least 26 states with 222 of the 270 electoral votes needed for election, Humphrey in Massachusetts and the District of Columbia with 17 electoral votes and Wallace in 5 states with 45 electoral votes.

The standing in other states was subject to rival claims or there were no attributable non-partisan figures.

The survey indicated Wallace could run second to Nixon in Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio and Alaska—and possibly Arizona and Idaho as well.

Wallace also showed strong but unmeasured labor support in Texas, Tennessee and Michigan and a more general appeal in Virginia.

In Kentucky, where Democrats are splintered and defections to Wallace are reported, some party leaders have said the Democrats could draw too low a vote—less than 20 per cent—to get on the 1972 ballot with out petitioning. More optimistic Democrats says Humphrey is running second to Nixon and gaining.

Wallace is an imponderable in Indiana, which gave him 29 per cent of its vote in the 1964 Democratic presidential primary. A poll for the Indianapolis Star and News gave Nixon about 44 per cent and Wallace and Humphrey each about 20 per cent.

Ohio Secretary of State Ted W. Brown has figured Wallace with about 25 per cent of that state's vote, ahead of Humphrey, and the AFL-CIO is working hard against reported breaks in labor ranks. But Nixon chiefs say Wallace is running third, not second.

Polls show Wallace running second in Alaska and disagree on whether he or Humphrey are second now in Arizona. Wallace strength in Idaho is a puzzler but the two major parties discount claims he has a majority.

Wallace showed leads in Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana and Mississippi. Nixon appeared to have an edge in North and South Carolina and was running close to Wallace in Georgia.

Humphrey supporters in a dozen states report gains since his North Vietnam bombing halt speech but the Democratic candidate still suffers from intraparty splits in several major states.

Bayh, 40, a friend of the Kennedy family, got campaign help Oct. 2 from Joan Kennedy, wife of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts. Mrs. Kennedy joined Bayh's wife, Marvella, in an all-day swing through several of the state's largest cities. Bayh's chances are clouded by the presidential candidacies of Republican Richard M. Nixon and independent George C. Wallace.

Wallace carried Lake County, the populous East Chicago-Gary-Hammond area, in the 1964 Democratic presidential primary and could cut heavily into the Democratic vote there this year.

In 1962 Bayh carried Lake County by 37,326 votes in beating three-term Republican incumbent Homer E. Caphart, but his statewide margin was only 10,994.

Bayh's people figure that his principal problem is how to counteract a probable big margin for Nixon in the state.

Nixon carried Indiana by 222,762 votes over John F. Kennedy in 1960. He was far ahead of the GOP state ticket. This year Nixon collected 508,362 votes in the presidential primary, running unopposed.

Hot Race for Audubon Meet Speaker Senate in Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—

The name is Ruckelshaus, and the owner is trying to make it enough of a household word in Indiana to derail Sen. Birch Bayh's run for a second term.

William D. Ruckelshaus, a 36-year-old state legislator from Indianapolis, went to work on the name immediately after the Republican State Convention nominated him in June.

He joked about it by extending the name out beyond the edge of billboards, emphasizing its length. One of his slogans is "vote the long name."

And his campaigners are fond of printing the name in two colors—RUCKELSHA in red, the US in blue.

Polls sponsored by the Republicans themselves, and made public by the Republicans, show Ruckelshaus running behind Bayh.

Both take a "peace with honor" position on Vietnam but Bayh said Sept. 21 the United States could stop bombing North Vietnam without conditioning the halt on a response by the other side.

Wonder Boys in Command of the AIC

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Arkansas Tech's Wonder Boys took command of the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference football race with a thrilling 17-14 victory over longtime rival State College of Arkansas Saturday night.

The Wonder Boys and Bears went into the game undefeated. A crowd of 8,000 watched Tech build a 10-0 lead, but SCA roared back for two touchdowns in the final period to take a 14-10 lead with less than six minutes left in the game.

With about three minutes left, however, Tech's Daryl Melton put the Wonder Boys ahead to stay with a dazzling 52-yard punt return. Dairrel O'Bar's 40-yard field goal and a 10-yard pass from Leon Anderson to Bill Nelson had given Tech its 10-0 lead.

J. B. Pendergraft raced four yards for one touchdown and Frank Richardson plunged over from one yard out for SCA's scores.

Tech has now defeated the defending APC champion, Arkansas A&M, the preseason favorite, Henderson, and SCA in building a 6-0 record.

In the only other conference game, A&M blanked Harding 13-0 as fullback Ronnie Sabbatini caught one touchdown pass and raced 11 yards for another score.

Both teams were without victories in AIC play this season going into the game.

Henderson and Ouachita picked up nonconference victories Saturday.

Ouachita won its third straight by handing Millsaps its first loss of the season, 24-10, at Jackson, Miss. Millsaps had beaten Henderson and Harding earlier in the season.

Ed Scrimshire scored first for Ouachita on a four-yard run. Buddy Bartling kicked a 25-yard field goal for Millsaps but Jim Boyette booted a 30-yard three-pointer for OBU.

John Cunningham and Bobby Crouch scored the other OBU touchdowns on runs of four and six yards, respectively.

Henderson quarterback Tommy Hart scored two touchdowns as the Reddies came from behind in the second half for a 21-10 victory over Florence State of Alabama at Florence, Ala. Jack Meyers sprinted 24 yards for the other Reddie TD.

SHEEP SHEARING may become a lost art if tests being conducted by the U.S. Department of Agriculture prove conclusive. At left, Joyce Asher of Aurora, Mo., uses traditional cutters during a Girl Scout project, but at right, a USDA technician grabs a handful of wool and, rolling his wrist quickly along the skin, easily defleeces a sheep which has been treated chemically. Shearing with clippers is a highly skilled task calling for wages of about $12 an hour. A nonspecialist drawing about $2.50 an hour can learn quickly to remove fleece from chemically treated sheep. Further studies are necessary to determine whether chemical defleecing is economically practical and whether it causes chemical residues in the meat, alters wool growth or quality, or harms sheep exposed to heat and cold.

Fulbright Gives Views on Law, Order

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., seeking re-election, outlined his views over the weekend on the issue of law and order, and also explained his feelings about the attempt to name Abe Fortas as chief justice of the United States.

Fulbright's Republican opponent, Charles T. Bernard of Earle, said, meanwhile, that he couldn't understand the senator's "denial" that Fulbright had received funds from the Council for a Livable World.

Bernard said last week the council gave more than $7,000 to Fulbright, and the GOP nominee repeated the statement at a meeting of cotton ginners at Helena Sunday.

Fulbright's reply to Bernard was that he doubted the accuracy of the charge. The senator said he didn't think the organization itself made contributions, but urged instead that contributions be made by others to benefit certain senators.

On another matter, Fulbright said Saturday that traditionally law and order "are the local responsibility of states, cities and sheriffs."

Fulbright said the only area where self-government is working outside the United States is Western Europe. He said countries in Asia and Africa are moving away from the idea.

"And if you will study these you will see that when you concentrate the power of law enforcement in a federal (or highly centralized) government, you will step away from democracy," he said.

Fulbright also said "some questionable items brought up late" in the debate over the nomination of Abe Fortas to be chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court had caused him to oppose the nomination.

"There was this question of fees which I thought unbecoming of a justice to do it in this particular way," he said, raising of a lecture fee for an associate justice by his former law partner and donating it to a

Court Rejects Appeals in Radio Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The

Supreme Court rejected today a series of appeals challenging changes in presunrise operations of hundreds of radio stations.

The changes, ordered by the Federal Communications Commission in July 1967, severely cut back their presunrise service.

The FCC was sustained last May by the U.S. Circuit Court in New York City, a decision the Supreme Court refused to review.

To minimize nighttime interference problems, the FCC long has required many radio stations to operate only during the day or at reduced power at night. Since 1941, however, many stations had been allowed to go on the air at 4 a.m. with daytime power.

This early starting time permitted broadcast of important early morning items: traffic conditions, school closings and weather reports.

However, with the proliferation of new AM stations following World War II, the FCC deemed daytime-only radio stations and fulltime radio stations required by license to operate with less power at night were permitted to sign on at 6 a.m. local time, but with power not in excess of 500 watts.

This produced complaints that (1) the scope of presunrise operations was being reduced; (2) some stations were being exposed to increased interference.

The appeals to the court were from the Association on Broadcasting Standards, Inc., a trade association; May Broadcasting Co., licensees of Class III fulltime standard broadcast stations; American Broadcasting Companies, Inc.

Crank Won't Promise Salary Raises for Teachers

Gazette State News Service
EL DORADO — Education will get top priority if he is elected, Marion H. Crank, the Democratic nominee for governor, said here Thursday, but he added, if the money isn't available, teachers shouldn't expect raises.

Teachers salaries have been used as a political football for years," Crank said, "and I'm not going to commit myself to any specific pay raises. This was done two years ago through ignorance by both candidates."

Crank made the statement in answer to a newsman's question about teachers' salaries.

Sub Unitas Has Really Bad Time

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Substitute quarterbacks in pro football often have a difficult time. And that's just what happened to a Baltimore sub named Unitas.

Johnny Unitas, one of the truly awesome figures in the National Football League, was sent into the game Sunday to spark Baltimore's sagging offense. Instead, he turned in a performance that was anything but awe inspiring as the Colts were upset 30-20 by the Cleveland Browns.

Baltimore's first loss in six games dropped the Colts into second place in the tough Coastal Division behind the Los Angeles Rams who got past stubborn Atlanta 27-14. The Rams and Colts collide next Sunday.

In other NFL action, Green Bay, 2-3-1, tied Detroit, 3-2-1, 14-14; Dallas, 6-0, topped Minnesota, 3-3, 20-7; St. Louis, 3-3, bombed Washington, 3-3, 41-14; San Francisco, 3-3, upset the New York Giants, 4-2, 26-10; New Orleans, 3-3, edged Pittsburgh, 0-6, 16-12, and Chicago, 2-4, beat Philadelphia, 0-6, 29-16.

Kansas City surprised Oakland 24-10, the New York Jets downed Houston 20-14, Miami nipped Cincinnati 24-22 and San Diego trounced Denver 55-24 in the American Football League.

Unitas, who is troubled by a sore elbow and who didn't see his first action until late in the Colts' fifth game, started the second half in place of Earl Morrall. Cleveland led 14-7 at halftime.

Unitas was greeted by a tremendous cheer by Baltimore fans. But he soon became the target of the crowd's frustration as he completed just one of 11 passes.

"I started the second half with Unitas because I thought he would give us a lift," Coach Don Shula said.

But Unitas completed just one of 12 passes—a screen behind the scrimmage line—and had three interceptions. Not only did the interceptions draw boos from the Baltimore crowd, they led to two Cleveland touchdowns and a field goal.

Bill Nelsen passed for three Cleveland touchdowns as the Browns ran their record to 3-3 and stayed in a first-place tie with New Orleans and St. Louis in the Century Division.

Los Angeles fell behind 14-0 before overtaking Atlanta, 1-5, with a 17-point second quarter in which Roman Gabriel threw a pair of touchdown passes and Bruce Gossett kicked a field goal. The first Atlanta score came on a 90-yard return of an intercepted pass by Ken Reeves.

Bart Starr, benched with a sore shoulder, also played the role of substitute, and with more success than Unitas. Starr went in for one play in the fourth quarter and passed for the touchdown that gave Green Bay its deadlock with Detroit.

Bill Musson threw two scoring strikes for Detroit, which took over the Central Division lead from Minnesota.

Minnesota gained a 7-6 lead over Dallas, who like Los Angeles is 6-0, when Bill Brown smashed a yard to score.

But the Capitol Division-leading Cowboys scored twice in the second half on Craig Baynam's 15-yard run and Cornell Green's 55-yard return of an intercepted pass.

Jim Hart passed for two touchdowns and ran for another in leading St. Louis over Washington, whose ace passer, Sonny Jurgensen, was hampered by a cracked rib. Jurgensen passed for one score before retiring in the fourth quarter.

John Brodie passed for two touchdowns and Gary Lewis and Ken Willard ate up yardage on the ground as San Francisco took the Giants, who fell two games behind Dallas with their second straight defeat.

A defense which stopped Pittsburgh four straight times inside the five-yard line and Charlie Durkee's three field goals sparked New Orleans over the Steelers. Bill Kilmer passed for the Saints' touchdown.

Field goals—five by Mac Percival—also played a big part in Chicago's victory over Philadelphia. Roosevelt Taylor accounted for one Chicago touchdown by racing 90 yards with an interception.

Crank Says WR Making Wild Charges

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Marion H. Crank and the Democratic party state chairman charged during the week-end that Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller and fellow Republicans were making wild, desperate charges.

Crank, the Democratic party nominee for governor, called a Rockefeller statement, "the most childish and asinine yet." Charles Matthews, the party chairman, said the GOP workers "obviously lost their momentum," and added: "We can fully expect the Republicans to make this the dirtiest campaign in recent times."

Crank's ire was focused on a statement made by Rockefeller, who seeks re-election as the first GOP chief executive of Arkansas since Reconstruction, in connection with a Cummins Prison Farm shooting incident. Rockefeller was asked Friday if he knew of any definite connection between Crank and a recent sitdown strike at Cum-

HHH Expects Cooperation of S. Vietnam

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Hubert H. Humphrey says the United States is doing the bombing in North Vietnam and South Vietnam should not be able to exercise a veto over any U.S. decision to halt it.

"I believe that the American people expect the government of South Vietnam to be cooperative," the Democratic presidential candidate said Sunday. "We have borne a heavy burden in this war."

Third party candidate George C. Wallace, meanwhile, said if there is no sign of progress in mins Prison Farm that resulted in the wounding of 23 inmates.

"No," Rockefeller said, "except that it is very interesting the number of people formerly were connected with the penitentiary system that are seen with him (Crank) from time to time. You put things together and it does make you suspicious."

"As is his habit, he again is insulting the intelligence of the people of Arkansas," Crank said in answer. "This type of conduct is typical of a beaten and desperate candidate."

Crank also described Rockefeller's promise to seek additional salary raises for teachers as a "desperation move." Rockefeller has promised to seek at least $300-a-year pay hikes for teachers.

Crank said Rockefeller's proposal would cost an additional $5.5 million the first year and about that much the second year.

"There isn't any doubt that in their desperation they are now ready to promise anything or say anything that might help them gain enough votes to overcome the lead that we have," Crank said. "And you can see from the releases this matter of their talk about the prison is an indication of it."

"I have told the leaders in our public education that it is of utmost importance to me, it is No. 1 in my program, that they will always receive consideration on any increases that we may have," Crank said. "But I will not make flat promises of $300 or $500, because they are the kind of promises that cannot be kept in many instances."

Matthews' accusation came at a news conference Sunday. "Realizing that all his (Rockefeller's) money is not going to buy this election, Rockefeller is now reduced to rumor-mongering and character assassination," the Democratic party official said.

He blasted Rockefeller's remark about Crank and the prison shooting, likening it to "dirt and desperation."

Matthews was with J. W. Benfield, the party secretary. They said they had made a 35-county trip last week and found the people "generally dissatisfied with the Rockefeller administration."

HOPE (ARK) STAR, Printed by Offset

peace negotiations by Jan. 20—and said he prays there is—this country should consider the alternative of pressing for military victory.

And Republican Richard M. Nixon predicted he'll win the election Nov. 5 with a margin three to four per cent greater than the best opinion poll shows "unless some great event happens."

Humphrey said he presumed South Vietnam president Nguyen Van Thieu spoke for himself in saying there should be no bombing halt without a reciprocal gesture from Hanoi.

A decision on whether to halt the bombing would have to be made by the United States, in the light of what it considers the necessities in Vietnam to be, Humphrey said.

"Obviously, we will take into consideration many things but this is an American mission," he said. "I believe there is very little bombing if any, done by the South Vietnamese. And this matter must be something over which the government of Vietnam, South Vietnam, cannot exercise a veto."

The vice president was interviewed on CBS' "Face the Nation."

Wallace was asked on another television panel program how long he would let the Paris peace talks go on before would decide as president to go for a military victory.

"I would say if the Paris peace talks do not evidence any sign of progress by the beginning of the next administration," he replied, "they I think we ought to reappraise our position."

Wallace appeared on NBC's "Meet the Press."

He said the peace talks now "are purely propaganda on the part of the North Vietnamese."

Wallace also said he opposes a bombing halt without a guarantee from Hanoi of "reciprocal concessions" but said he would have to back President Johnson if the President decided to halt the bombing.

"I will hope and pray that he's correct," Wallace emphasized.

He said Hanoi concessions should include de-escalation of the fighting in the South, a halt to terrorist attacks in South Vietnamese cities and cessation of North Vietnamese infiltration into the South.

Wallace met with his running mate, retired Gen. Curtis E. LeMay who was just back from a fact-finding tour in Vietnam, for two hours before the television appearance.

He said LeMay found evidence of a "significant buildup" of supplies by North Vietnam since President Johnson limited the bombing, and came back with the feeling the North Vietnamase are not negotiating in good faith.

Nixon's prediction of a great victory that the best poll shows would mean a landslide if based on favorable polls in the last month giving him a 5 to 15 per cent lead over Humphrey.

"I say this because I have great confidence in our organization," Nixon said in an interview. "We'll run three to four per cent better than the best poll."

The Republican pledged in a statement to create a National Teacher Corps of volunteer college and high school students to tutor youngsters in city schools after hours and during summers.
